GOES TO COUNTRY FOR ITS JUDGMENT

Entire Country Receives Bryan's Statement With Amazement

MANY SPECULATIONS.

Commoner Says He Will Act as Private Citizen and Tell Why He Left Wilson's Cabinet.

Hardly anything was talked about in Washington last night and today but the cabinet resignation, Mr. Bryan's statement of yesterday afternoon furnishing an additional topic. Administration officials, politicians of all parties and the great army of lay politicians in Washington were amazed at the tenor of the pronunciamento and the circumstances of its issue.

To officials it semed incredible that Mr Bryan should have forestalled the President's note to Germany by disclosing and criticising its purport in advance of its publication, taking advantage of his knowledge of its contents gained in his official capacity as Secretary of State. No official utterance from the administration was made upon this feaure, but there were as bitter private comment upon it.

William Jennings Bryan, shortly after turning over his office of Secretary of State to his successor yesterday issued a statement. He said:

"My reason for resigning is clearly stated in my letter of resignation namely, that I may employ as a private citizen the means which the President does not feel at liberty to employ. I honor him for doing what he believes to be right, and I am sure that he desires, as I do, to find a peaceful solution of the problem which has been created by the action of the submarines.

"Two of the points on which we differ, each conscientious in conviction, are.

"First, as to the suggestion of investigation by an international commission, and

"Second, as to warning Americans against traveling on belligerent vessels or with cargoes of ammunition.

"I believe that this nation should frankly state to Germany that we are willing to apply in this case the principles which we are bound by treaty to apply to disputes between the United States and 30 countries with which we have made treaties providing for investigation of all disputes of every character and nature.

"These treaties, negotiated under this administration, make war practically impossible between this country and these 30 governments, representing nearly three-fourths of all the people of the world.

"Among the nations with which we have these treaties are Great Britain France and Russia. No matter what disputes may arise between us and these treaty nations, we agree that there shall be no declaration of war and no commencement of hostilities until the matters in dispute have been investigated by an international commission and a year's time is allowed for investigation and report. This plan was offered to all nations without any exceptions whatever, and Germany was one of the nations that accepted the principle, being the twelfth, I think, to accept. No treaty was actually entered into with Germany, but I cannot see that should stand in the way when both nations indorsed the principle. I do not know whether Germany would accept the offer, but our country should, in my judgment, make the offer.

"Such an offer, if accepted, would at once relieve the tension and silence all the jingoes who are demanding war. Germany has always been a friendly nation, and a great many of our people are of German ancestry. Why should we not deal with Germany according to this plan to which the nation has pledged its support?

"The second point of difference is as to the course which should be pursued in regard to Americans traveling on belligerent ships or with cargoes of ammunition.

"Why should an American citizen be permitted to involve the country in war by traveling upon a belligerent ship he knows that the ship will pass through a danger zone? The question is not whether an American citizen has a right under international law to travel on a belligerent ship; the question is whether he ought not, out of consideration for his country, if not for his own safety, avoid danger when avoidance is possible.

"It is a very one-sided citizenship that compels a government to go to war over a citizen's right and yet relieves the citizen of all obligations to consider his nation's welfare. I do not know just how far the President can go legally in actually preventing Americans from traveling on belligerent ships, but I believe the government should go as far as it can and that in case of doubt it should give the benefit of the doubt to the government.

"But even if the government could not legally prevent citizens from traveling on belligerent ships, it could, and in my judgment should earnestly advise American citizens not to risk themselves or the peace of their country, and I have no doubt that these warnings would be heeded.

"President Taft advised Americans to leave Mexico when insurrection broke out there, and President Wilson has repeated the advice. This advice in my judment, was eminently wise, and I think the same course should be followed in regard to warning Americans to keep off vessels subject to attack.

"I think, too, that American passenger ships should be prohibited from carrying ammunition. The lives of passengers ought not to be endangered by cargoes of ammunition, whether that danger comes from possible explosions within or from possible attacks from without. Passengers and ammunition should not travel together. The attempt to prevent American citizens from incurring these risks is entirely consistent with the effort which our government is making to prevent attacks from submarines.

"The use of one remedy does not exclude the use of the other. The most familiar illustration is to be found in the action taken by municipal authorities during a riot. It is the duty of the mayor to suppress the mob and to prevent violence, but he does not hesitate to warn citizens to keep off the streets during the riots. He does not question their right to use the streets, but, for their own protection and in the interest of order, he warns them not to incur the risks involved in going upon the streets when men are shooting at each other.

"The President does not feel justified in taking the action above suggested. That is, he does not feel justified, first in suggesting the submission of the controversy to investigation, or, second, in warning the people not to incur the extra hazards in traveling on belligerent ships or on ships carrying ammunition. And he may be right in the position he has taken, but as a private citizen I am free to urge both of these propositions and to call public attention to these remedies in the hope of securing such an expression of public sentiment as will support the President in employing these remedies if in the future he finds it consistent with his sense of duty to favor them."

Italians Take Monfalcone

London, June 10—Capture of the Austrian town of Monfalcone is announced in an official communication from Rome. Gen. Cadorna, Italian chief of staff, reports that the town was occupied after stubborn fighting along the Isonzo river.

At various points along the Isonzo sharp fighting has occurred and several successes for the Italians are announced, but it is conceded the Austrians still hold dominating positions on the right, or west, bank of the river.

ALL EYES NOW TURN ON BERLIN

President Wilson's Note Expected to Reach City This Afternoon

IS IT PEACE OR BREAK?

Missive Carefully Worded, But Couched in Language That Cannot be Misunderstood.

Washington, June 10—America's eyes are anxiously turned toward Berlin today. The note which forced Secretary of State Bryan from President Wilson Cabinet is expected to be delivered there this afternoon.

On its receiption by the German government, and the position the Kaiser and his advisers adopt, hinges peace or a break in diplomatic relations for the United States.

Officials here say frankly that even though Germany should adopt a defiant attitude no one in touch with the inside of the situation believes diplomatic relations can calmly be broken off. The recall of Ambassador Gerard under existing conditions would have to be followed by steps to maintain this country's position. And these steps of necessity would have to be of a nature that would call for action by Germany.

Washington, June 10—The United States yesterday sent to Germany a note reiterating its demand for reparation for the loss of American lives in the sinking of the Lusitania and setting forth clearly the earnest desire of the American government that Germany signify her early adherence to the principles of international law—that neutrals be permitted to travel on unarmed ships without being subject to the dangers of submarine warfare.

Couched in much more friendly terms than it was believed would be used when the unsatisfactory answer to the American note of May 13 arrived from Germany, the communication was cabled to Ambassador Gerard for presentation to the German foreign office. It will be given out tonight for publication in morning papers of Friday.

SWEEPING INVESTIGATION

Methods Employed at Academy Department to be Laid Bare

Annapolis, June 10—An order from Secretary of the Navy Daniels, directing Capt. Russell, of the court of inquiry, to include a sweeping investigation of all academic departments as to the methods employed in the preparation of examination papers and their proper safeguard, two additional midshipmen made parties defendant to the pending proceedings and evidence that the local board of investigation did not go as completely into its work as it might have done were the important developments in the third day's session of the court which is inquiring into the "gouging" scandal and other irregularities in the recent examinations of the midshipmen of the Naval Academy.

When the court opened President Russell announced that two more midshipmen were drawn in as parties defendant because of their familiarity with and access to the examination questions.

With the exception of the few minutes that Supt. Fullam was on the stand, the whole of the court's time was taken up with an examination of Commander A. W. Traut, head of the department of modern languages, which is the storm center of the inquiry. Commander Traut was subjected to a gruelling fire of questions on cross-examination, and when he left the stand at the close of the day's session he was reminded that he might be called again.

He recounted how he and other members of his department, becoming suspicious that something was wrong, discovered scraps of paper bearing either examination questions or the solution of questions lying about the floor and other circumstances that led Supt. Fullam to detail a board of investigation.

Counsel for the accused midshipmen questioned the witness at great length on why the investigation did not extend to more midshipmen and why, in view of testimony of certain midshipmen that they procured copies of the questions in the languages examinations which, on examination day, proved to be the correct questions, they were not equally as culpable as those under arrest who had seen the official paper. Commander Traut said it was the opinjon of the board that the seven "middies" under arrest knew that they had the examination questions and were therefore more guilty than the others. It was brought out, however, that none of the midshipmen knew the papers were the actual examination papers.

Commander Traut explained that his suspicions of burglary in the room of his department led him to place an extra lock on the door.

Replying to a question, he said that he had more faith in locks than the honor system at the Naval Academy. He also told the names of other midshipmen, who, he heard has possession of advance information.

HOSTILITIES IN THE EASTERN ZONE

Lemberg Seems Doomed to Fall Again Into Hands of Teutons

IS IT A RUSSIAN TRAP?

Official Berlin Believes the Entire Russian Campaign in Galicia Has Come to Naught.

London, June 10—The investment of Lemberg is nearing completion, according to dispatches from Berlin and Vienna and the Russians are reported to be preparing to evacuate the city. Terrific fighting in which huge numbers are engaged, continues along the entire Galician front, with the Teutonic allies everywhere successful, despite violent Russian counter-attacks.

The Austro-German right wing has stormed and captured Stanislau, the most important railway center in Southeastern Galicia, and has cut the communications of the Russian forces operating north of Bukofina with those around Lemberg.

Stanislau has been in the possession of the Russians, with the exception of a few days since last November. Its fall is believed in Berlin to mark the collapse of the entire Russian campaign in Southeast Galicia.

Co-operating with the Austro-German forces along the Dniester, a heavy force operating from north of Czarnowitz advanced to the north of Kolomea, and pressing forward to Stanislau, took the town by storm. This force, according to an official statement issued in Vienna, is now driving forward toward Halicz. More than 5,000 prisoners have been taken in the fighting thus far.

Petrograd, in an official statement reports the repulse of German attacks along the Dniester on the Ugartsberk-Uimatchoff front, and declares that 800 prisoners, together with a number of officers, were captured. Heavy fighting is proceeding on the left bank of the river, the Russian War office states. The Russians admit progress for the Germans in their outflanking drive in Courland.

Petrograd, June 10.—The Armeyski, the official organ of the Southern Army, says:

"In Galicia we are continuing to move forward successfully in many directions."

This means much, coming from such a tacturn man as General Ivanoff. It is known that the general is entirely satisfied at successfully misleading the Germans at Gorlice and Przemsyl, where neither a gun nor a prisoner was lost. The delays he secured there gave time for the widespread redistribution of the Russian Army, which his now engaged the enemy at many points chosen by the Russians.

General Ivanoff held Przemysl with only a military corps and part of a field division which he withdrew in good order upon very broad prepared defenses on both sides of the railway near Mosciska, 20 miles eastward from Przemysl.

For more than a week the Germans have been busy mounting heavy guns for the siege of Przemysl, while the Russians were rendering the trenches in the open country around Mosciska impregnable and are now inflicting terrific slaughter on the Germans.

M. Borin, the military expert, writes in Novoe Vremya, that it is likely one of the bloodiest battles of the war will be fought at the southern end of this position. The Germans, who are attempting to reach Stryj, can do nothing against Mosciska, which is an incomparably better position for the Russians than was Przemysl.

The Germans have abandoned their attack on the extreme south and have withdrawn outside of the range of the guns on the southern bridge heads of the Dneister.

General Irmanoff's army made a victorious advance to within six miles of Wisloka, and then General Ivanoff achieved the great plan of forcing the German army to move as he moves and preventing them from establishing any siege artillery.

The mobility ensured in East Prussia by the German railroad system precludes any Russian victories on the western salient in Poland, where the Germans have established long lines for artillery, but in Galicia General Ivanoff has succeeded in compelling them to engage in open fighting with a terrible list of casualties at any point he pleases and he is ready to forfeit any piece of masonry such as Przemysl to their heavy artillery. It is unlikely that any German army will escape catastrophe while his mobility continues on its present lines.

CASE OF LEO M. FRANK.

Governor of Georgia Only Hope of Condemned Man.

Atlanta, Ga., June 10.—By a vote of 2 to 1 the Georgia prison commission yesterday decilned to recommend commutation of the death sentence to Leo M. Frank, despite appeals for clemency from millions of persons throughout the United States.

The decision came as a surprise, since it had been rumored that the commission was divided 2 to 1 in Frank's favor.

Frank's fate now rests with the governor. Unless the chief executive interferes, Frank will die on the gallows on June 22. Precedent has been for the governor to carry out the recommendation of the commission.

Governor John M. Slaton retires from office on June 26. His successor will be Judge Nat M. Harris, who has stated his position in the following words:

"The Frank case is a Georgia case for the people of Georgia to decide."

It is not considered likely, however, that Governor Slaton will leave the fate of Frank unsettled when he gives up his position.

The report of the majority of the prison commission—R. E. Davison and E. S. Rainey—was remarkable for its brevity. It follows:

"The prison commission have had under consideration an application for executive clemency in behalf of Leo M. Frank, who, at the July term, 1913, of the Superior Court of Fulton County, was convicted of murder and sentenced to hang, and beg leave to report that they decline to recommend clemency.

"None of the grand jurors who found the indictment, none of the trial jurors who heard all of the evidence under oath, nor the prosecuting attorney have asked that the sentence be commuted. The judge who presided at the trial and had the right to exercise the discretion of fixing the penalty at either life imprisonment or death imposed the latter sentence and overruled a motion for a new trial.

"Several appeals were taken to the Appellate Court of the State and the Supreme Court of the United States, all of which were denied and the judgment of the lower court affirmed, thus assuring the defendant of his legal and constitutional rights under the laws of the land."

"The report of Commissioner T. E. Patterson was in favor of commutation."

The news that the finding of the board was unfavorable was carried to Frank by Milton Klein, a warm personal friend. Frank's father and his wife were with him at the time.

When Mr. Klein reappeared in the jail corridor he said: "Mr. Frank has nothing to say just now. He seemed unmoved by the decision. He may have something to say later."

Attorney Harry A. Alexander said that counsel for Frank would move for an immediate hearing before the governor.

AMERICAN CRISIS STIRRING EUROPE

Newspapers of Old World Give Views on Bryan's Resignation

IS A DECISIVE EVENT

London and Paris Believe Wilson is Prepared to Hold Germany Responsible For Her Acts.

London, June 10—Surfeited as the British public has been with war sensations, Secretary Bryan's resignation has created unusual interest and discussion because it has given a wholly unexpected turn to political events in America.

The British press has shown a strong inclination recently to refrain from comment on the affairs of all neutrals which might seem in the nature of advice or dictation. Nevetheless President Wilson's policy has been watched with the greatest earnestness.

All yesterday afternoon newspaper give their largest headlines to Mr. Bryan, and the placards on the streets call the event "American crisis."

"One of the most decisive events of the world conflict," is what the Evening Star calls the resignation of Secretary of State Bryan.

"Coming after the heroic decision of Italy to draw her sword in defense of liberty and the public law of Europe," the Star says: "it is a death blow to the Germanic powers. It means that America has crossed the Rubicon. It means that the greatest democracy on earth has resolved to be true to itself and its ideals. It means that Germany will be held to a strict accountability for her violations of human scantities. It means that American people will defend civilization against barbarism, international law against submarine practice, and right against conscienceless might. It means that Germany must choose between obedience to the ancient code of sacred justice and the new code of satanic deviltry. It means that America will omit no act which is necessary to cleanse the seas of the Prussian wolves and tigers who prey upon women and children.

"We have always proclaimed our belief that President Wilson would find a way, and that it would be a great way. He has given Germany ample time to relent and to refrain"

AGENT TIED AND GAGGED

A. J. Dyke Claims He Was Victim of Hold-up Men in Northwestern section

The Alexandria police are investigating a mysterious hold-up which is alleged to have taken place in the northeastern section of the city last night. Shortly after 9 o'clock Andrew J. Pyke, an insurance agent, employed by the Home Beneficial Insurance Company, was found tied and gagged in Greenwood Court, bounded by Fayette, Princess, Queen and Payne streets. A handkerchief was tied over his face and his hands and feet were bound with twine. Officer Norris carried the man who was, apparently in a dazed condition, to the Alexandria Hospital. He told the officer that he had been attacked by two white men with whom he had some words in the center part of the city earlier in the day. They had knocked him down, kicked and beaten him and dragged him into the court through an alley. After leaving him for a while they returned and robbed him of some papers and between $13 and $15 in cash

At the hospital Dyke was examined by Dr. S. B. Moore, who was unable to find any bruises or signs that he has been beaten. The place where the assault is said to have occurred is thickly populated by colored people and the police have been unable to find anyone who witnessed the affair or heard an outcry.

Dyke is still at the Alexandria Hospital resting up from his experience.

PUPILS IN EXPRESSION.

Interesting Commencement Exercises at St. Mary's Academy.

The commencement exercises of the pupils in expression held at St. Mary's Academy at 7:30 last evening proved a very delightful affair. In the "Garden Scene" from "Mary Stuart" by Schiller, Miss Mary Quinn as Elizabeth, and Miss Julia Duncan as Mary Stuart looked and acted their parts with an air suggesting "the professional"—many in the audience were moved to tears at Mary's pathetic pleading and to indignation at Elizabeth's haughty contempt of her victim.

Little Virginia Wilkins in her splendidly rendered "A Child's Wisdom," won new laurels. The "Selection from Pollyanna," by Miss Agnes Donaldson and little Mary Lennon was charmingly done. Miss Lennon as the little glad philosopher, was perfect in her interpretation, Nancy's part too was well done. Miss E Hubbard's interpretation of "The Race for Kanwanna's Bridal Wreath" showed splendid improvement in her dramatic work for the year. Two other selections from Shakespeare completed the literary numbers of the program. In "The Pound of Flesh," Miss Florence Evans as Portia and Miss Evelyn Howard as Shylock played their difficult roles with credit. Miss Virginia Downey rendered remarkably well the very difficult role of Lady Macbeth in the sleeping scene. That St. Mary's class in expression is rapidly forging to the front semed the conviction of the large and appreciative audience that witnessed last evening's performance. Interspersing the numbers of the expression class were musical numbers—vocal and instrumental—piano and violin. The musicians were Misses E. Nugent, D. Knight, V. Downey, and E. Ranmage, P. Harrington, H. and A. Cook, M Nash, D. Kennon, L. Parrish, M. Hayes, M. Goods, M. Brock, E. Hubbard, M. Kelly.

A very delightful violin number was rendered by Misses R. Morgan, W. Bayne, A. Whitton, E. Puckett and Master Elmer Davis.

At 7:30 this p. m. Class Day exercises and the awarding of prizes in high school and commercial department will take place.

A marriage license was issued in Washington yesterday to Julian Grayson and Mary Moore, both of Alexandria, Va.

MR. BRYAN'S DEFECTION.

The resignation of William Jennings Bryan of his position as Secretary of State at a time when President Wilson expects every American to do his duty, regardless of his political predilections, is the subject of criticism in every section of the country. Some persons who have blindly pinned their faith to him, suggest that the commoner is the victim of a conspiracy to get him out of the cabinet. This is an absurdity. Others, however, are tempted to compare him to Mr. Pecksnip, whose enemies likened him to a sign post on a country road—pointing in a direction he never takes. He has been carrying the dove of peace around with him for a long time, yet when war between the United States and Spain was declared he was one of the first to apply for a commission and appeared in a suit of blue. After having dropped his uniform he attempted to thwart this country in its purpose to acquire the Philippines. He has now muddied the waters when the honor of the United States it at stake, and would place his country in a humiliating position before the world by submitting to the encroachments of a foreign power which seems to have no regard for the rights and lives of the people of neutral nations.

A cotemporary suggests that Mr. Bryan would control the mad bull in the international china shop by the hypnotic power of his eye. The President and the American people would subdue the animal, if necessary, with a sledge hammer.

Democrats as well as republicans are incensed at his action in practically deserting his country at a time when he should have been as determined as the President in sustaining the honor of the United States by remaining in the exalted position in which he had been placed.

When war between the United States and Spain had ben precipitated by the policy of Weyler in Cuba General Fitzhugh Lee was Consul General at Havana. He was a holdover from the Cleveland administration—a democrat and an ex-Confederate Brigadier General. The official axe of the republicans under President McKinley was actively at work deposing men who were filling diplomatic positions, but the admirable manner in which General Lee had conducted affairs at Havana caused the executioner to halt when he reached the former Confederate, the candidates for whose place were many The republican papers published his picture with the following significant words under it. "Former Confederate Brigadier General Fitzhugh Lee, Consul General at Havana, who will not be relieved of his position." While some thoughtless republicans, thirsting for greed, are imagining they see an ignis fatuus in the disturbance in democratic administration, the bulk of the members of the organization are looking upon President Wilson as they did Fitzhugh Lee during the closing years of the last century. They are ready to stand by him

But, to return to Mr. Bryan. Simultaneously with the sending of the second note to Germany he issued a statement declaring, in advance of the the publication of the note, that he will go before the country in active opposition to the President's stand, that he will become a private citizen and ride a peace hobby. It is suggested by some that he will attempt to ride into the Presidentical chair on the Prohibition steed. It is also stated that the former secretary intends to devote his entire energies for some time to come to the "enlightment of the American people with respect to the principles at stake that compelled him to resign as Secretary of State."

The serious charge is made in some quarters that Mr. Bryan gave Germany a tip to the effect that this country would not resort to drastic measures in defense of its rights. Mr. Bryan has ever been the victim of his own ideals Successively obsessed by doctrines which the majority of his fellow-countrymen have been unable at the time to accept, he has too often occupied the melancholy position of a guidepost. pointing toward a narrow path, while the American people have swept by upon the broader road.

Most of the influential republican papers of the country are upholding the hands of Mr. Wilson while he is conducting negotiations with Germany. The following from the Baltimore American, a leading organ of the organization, is suggestive of this time:

"If one were disposed to take the politicial view of the situation, it would seem a justifiable surmise that the Democratic party will be shattered and that the Republican party will be turned to to carry on international policies of President Wilson, with the support of all the great element of the American people who believe in standing by the President. This is upon the assumption that Mr. Wilson may decline to run for another term. Should war or a breach of relations with Germany come about, it would be difficult to perceive other than the continuance of the present head of the nation in office. So that in any event any hopes or aspirations of Mr. Bryan are doomed to defeat and the country will look to the re-election of Mr. Wilson or the election of a Republican president. With Mr. Bryan stumping the country, the war issues cannot fail of injection, in a manner, into the next campaign. Thus the possibilities of Mr. Bryan for mischief are acute despite his pacific professions."

DISTURBERS OF THE PEACE

The great bulk of the German element in the United States are ready to stand by President Wilson in his controversy with the Fatherland.

A few however, are attempting to propagate a pro-German spirit in the country and are resorting to every means to inflame German-Americans against the administration's course. Some of this class have sent out the following to Germans in the United States, which is a libel upon the man to whom it is credited. It is signed "Herman Ridder, editor of the New York Staats-Zeitung."

Dear sir—A close canvass of citizens of German descent has revealed the fact that you are of German blood, and we want your acknowledgment, so that we may enroll your name among the faithful sons of the Fatherland who may be depended upon to defend its rights and its position should it be necessary to do so in the possible clash between Germany and the Unted States. May we depend upon you as a subscber to this paper as setting forth your principles and your allegiance?

Mr. Ridder's son, speaking for his father, repudiates the letter as treasonable and declares that it is altogether fraudulent and that his father, like all other responsible citizens of German extraction, is an outright American.

WAR RETURNS TO THE CRADLE OF THE RACE.

It is generally believed by archeologists that the rivers Euphrates and Tigris were among the five which the book of Genesis represents as forming a head in the Garden of Eden. This section of the world was doubtless the cradle of the human race, and no better spot on the earth could be found in which to place primitive man, as the fertility of Mesepotamia out of which Abraham was called has been known from time immemorable. The two rivers—Euphrates and Tigris—run parallel until their waters mingle in the Persian Gulf. Babylon was situated upon the Euphrates and Nineveh upon Tigris. Bagdad, city of the caliphs and the scene of many of the thrilling stories of the Arabian Nights' is on the Tigris This sleepy section of the world, in this day of wars and rumors of war, is being startled by the sound of cannon.

The Turkish gunboat Marmaris has been sunk and the Turkish transport Mosul has been captured in the Persian Gulf region. The British advance up the Tigris river and the occupation of Amara is announced by the British war office.

Agents of Germany, it was learned in New York yesterday, have taken steps with the aim of starting strikes in the big factories in the United States that are supplying arms, ammunition and other war supplies for the allies.

The new charter of Fairmont, W. Va., passed by the last Legislature has been declared unconstitutional by Judge W. S. Haymond, of the Circuit Court. The court held that the bill had not been read the second time in the Senate as required by the Constitution and that this vitiated the act. The question came up on an injunction against the city Board of Affairs inhibiting the members from appointing election supervisors as provided by the charter. The court also held that the literacy test was unconstitutional.

The Army Messenger of Petrograd referring to the naval engagement June 5 in the Baltic Sea off the Gulf of Riga, says that Russian submarines engaged no fewer than 10 German warships, which were attempting a sortie into the Baltic. The explosions on board some of these vessels led to the belief that damage was done by the undersea boats. A German second-class cruiser, the newspaper adds, was struck by a mine June 4. She did not sink, but was towed into Libau. A German steamer called the Hindenburg was blown up by striking a Russian mine.

Scions of Aristocracy Hanging Around Theatres and Music Halls

London, June 10—The ministry of munition bill, established a department to attend to the furnishing of supplies of munitions on an adequate scale, was passed by the House of Lords yesterday and received royal assent.

In the debate in the House of Lords on the munitions bill, Baron St. Davids, lord lieutenant of Pembrokeshire, thought it "a pity that the bill did not give power to requisition men as well as workers."

He wished to dissociate himself, he said, from attacks on the working classes.

The upper classes as a whole, Lord St. Davids said, had come out of this trial well, but there were idlers still among them, Even among the members of the upper house, he ventured to say, they could find men who had never done a day's work for themselves or for anybody else since they were born, and that their sons hung about theaters and music halls.

While that was going on, the baron contended, they might save themselves the trouble of looking for workingmen and talking of conscription and compulsory service. Men who refused to work should be made to fight, whether they like it or not.

French Girl Salutes English the Germans Were Executing.

Paris, June 10.—Near Vervins, a miller had hidden 11 English soldiers who had lost their way and been left behind by their corps. Everyone in the village knew they were there, but nobody gave them away when the Germans arrived until one man, bribed, denounced them to the German officer. They were captured and sentenced to be shot.

The members of the miller's family were arrested also and examined by the German officer. He asked the miller's 17 year old daughter whether her father had accomplices.

"Do with me what you like," she said, "you will get nothing out of me."

"I am going to have these Englishmen shot.

'Why? they have done nothing," she answered, "It is I who hid them and I you must punish."

"Which was the one whose mistress you were?" asked the German officer.

The girl cried: "They were all only my friends."

The German officer said to the girl: "You are a good French woman."

Then came his verdict. The miller was to be shot, his wife sentenced to four years' imprisonment, their daughter to serve two years,' her brother, a boy of 15, sent to a German reformatory The sentence was at once carried out. The 11 English soldiers walked to a wall to stand up and be shot, and as they passed the French girl, having asked the German officer's permission, kissed each one.

"PARTING OF THE WAYS."

Watterson Says Wilson And Bryan Were Unequally Yoked Together.

Louisville, Ky., June 10.—In an editorial under the caption, "The Parting of the Ways," Henry Watterson says in the Courier-Journal:

"In the resignation of Mr. Bryan the inevitable has come to pass. Why it was delayed so long is a puzzle to those, who, possessing some knowledge of the President and the Secretary of State, counted from the outset their disagreement was but a question of time. Two men more unlike in tempermental outfit and intellectual equipment were never yoked together in the same service.

"Observing that since the clash of arms in Europe the Secretary of State has been a mill-stone not only around the President's neck, but around the country's neck as well, it is but fair to say that, prior to these untoward times, he had made himself indispensable to the legislation which Mr. Wilson sought of Congress and thus to the immediate success of the administration. In spite of some personal gaucheries which brought Mr. Bryan into ridicule, but did not impair his party standing, he lent a helping hand to measures which elsewise would have gone astray. There is a glimpse of friction on the matter of prohibition. But this was in a way tided over. The break comes, therefore, suddenly, a bolt out of the blue, when the public was least expecting it.

"Yet the relief, which most thoughtful people feel, that at a supreme moment a most unequal foreign minister is disposed of, takes second place in their minds by the assurance that the exit means no backdown of the government, or lowering of the flag before duties, which, however, repugnant, are inexorable."

How Mrs. Harrod Got Rid of Her Stomach Trouble

"I suffered with stomach trouble for years and tried everything I heard of, but the only relief I got was temporary until last spring I saw Chamberlain's Tablets advertised and procured a bottle of them at our drug store. I got immediate relief from that dreadful heaviness after eating and from pain in the stomach," writes Mrs. Linda Harrod, Fort Wayne, Ind. Obtainable everywhere.

"On account of my confinement in the printing office I have for years been a chronic sufferer from indigestion and liver trouble. A few weeks ago I had an attack that was so severe that I was not able to go to the case for two days. Failing to get any relief from any other treatment I took three of Chamberlain's Tablets and the next day I felt like a new man" writes H. C. Bailey, Editor Carolina News, Chapin, S. C.
